Customized Video Solutions For Every Business

On-site or on the Go

As director of operations for a regional supermarket chain, I need to be able to look in on all my locations to make sure things are running smoothly. With Honeywell's Total Connect Video Services, I can easily log on to a secure website and remotely look in on any one of our locations whether I'm on-site or on the go! With so much perishable inventory, it's important to keep an eye on our freezers and refrigerators to ensure they're not left open. The cameras my security company installed in this section enable me to check on this. Imagine the loss of revenue from spoiled foods, or the liability if customers were to become ill. Ensuring that everything is being handled properly is easier than ever with by using Video Services.

Minding the Store

I'm an area manager for a chain of trendy clothing stores located in high-traffic malls. Like many retail environments, employee turnover is high. Although I can't be everywhere at once, I like to keep tabs on new associates and be sure that each location is operating properly. Video Services from Honeywell have made my job so much easier. I can look in on the stores from a PC and receive selected images to my PDA. Wherever I am, it's as good as being there!

Protection and Peace of Mind

I'm the security manager for a large property management company that covers over 100 commercial properties in two counties. That's a lot to be responsible for, and since I can't be everywhere at once, I have a staff and procedures in place to be sure that all the buildings and employees are safe and secure. But now that I have Video Services from Honeywell, I have additional peace of mind because I can instantly look in on any location at any time.

Connect to Opportunity

My brother and I have been in the electronics business for many years. Video Services from Honeywell helps us keep an eye on our business when we're not around, which usually means ensuring that things are safe and secure. However, Video Services recently helped us in a way we would never have imagined – functioning as a collaborative tool that actually helped us gain business.

My brother and I were off-site when we got a call from our office manager. A customer whose business we've been trying to get for a long time had called and wanted to place a large order and needed it shipped overnight. Because our high ticket items are in a restricted area of our warehouse, either my brother or I personally supervise the fulfillment of these orders. With Video Services from Honeywell I was able to remotely log in and view our staff handling this very important order. Thanks to Video Services, we were able to satisfy a new client and secure a great new business opportunity!
