Tomorrow's technology for today's lifestyles...

Selecting a security system to protect your home may be one of the most important decisions you ever make. The system will help protect your valuables, but most importantly, it will give you a secure feeling when you sleep at night or when you are away from home. When you purchase Honeywell's First Alert Professional security system, you'll get the highest quality, most advanced equipment available. Yet, our products are so simple to use.

Our keypads feature clear, easy-to-read displays that inform you of the status of your system. The sleek, contemporary styling blends with any décor. Most keypad models feature programmable panic buttons and backlit keys that makes them simple to operate even in the dark. Our new graphic touchscreen keypads offer the ultimate in convenience and control. Ask your First Alert Professional Authorized Dealer about the many options available.

Options...Options...Options...

We offer a variety of components that will suit the security needs of your home. With a First Alert Professional security system, you have the opportunity to choose a system that meets your needs. Wired or wireless, you will feel secure knowing that you've done the most to protect your home and family.

Glassbreak detectors alert your system to breaking glass. Your system responds whether it's an intruder with a rock, or the neighbor's baseball going through your window.

Some systems offer remote viewing via the Internet. First Alert Professional products offer the latest technology, so ask your authorized dealer for details.

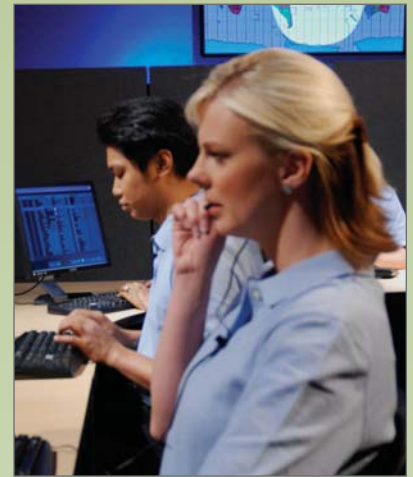

Useful accessories that complement your lifestyle...

We've thought of everything you might need!

Perhaps you need to save time because you're always on the go, or you just like to have the latest technology. Well, there's an assortment of programmable remotes that you can use to operate your system. Either handheld or on a keychain, you can arm or disarm your system without having to remember a code! Depending on the model you select, additional buttons can be programmed to summon for help, turn on the lights before you enter the house, or operate other household devices. There is even an option for a talking remote.

Personal pendants can enhance your security even more. They are an excellent choice if a family member needs to summon for help in an emergency. With a variety of designs and sizes, you can choose a personal pendant to suit your needs. And, you have added comfort in knowing that you can get help when you need it – with just the press of a button.

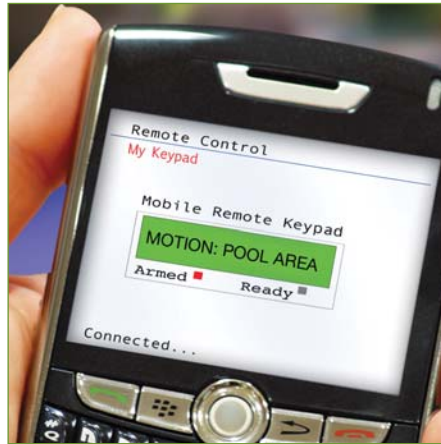

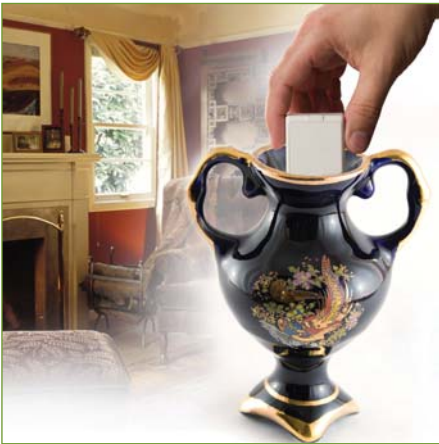

Getting help when you need it most

Your system is connected to a central station to provide 24-hour a day monitoring of your home. Security professionals may contact you to verify alarms before sending help. Fire, police or emergency personnel can be quickly summoned to your home.

Beyond traditional safety

Honeywell's newest products provide additional safety for your home or business and can alert you to potentially damaging situations. Our asset protection device, responding to subtle changes in the position of the protected object, can be used to help prevent theft. You can be informed if someone moves a treasured heirloom vase, opens your jewelry box or touches your coin collection—even if your alarm system is not armed! Our outdoor motion sensor lets safety continue outside the home, protecting driveways, pool areas, sheds and letting you know if strangers are present. We have sensors that will inform you of changes in temperature, which could alert you to extreme conditions that might cause broken pipes. Water or flood conditions can also be noted, to help minimize damage. We even have a solution that will enable your system to announce the alarm condition in clear spoken words, so everyone will know what action to take! What's more, subscribe to our Total Connect service and be sent text messages about any alert condition, wherever you are.
